AN ARTIST'S CONCEPTION of what Traders Trail Estates could look like five years from now. The $5,000,000 development is located on the west side of Okanagan Lake, six miles north of Kelowna. Eventually 120 residential lots

$5 Million Project Slated On West Side Of Lake

Another new residential development was announced today for the Kelowna district, the second in less than a week. Edward F. M. Hill, president of Hill Sales Ltd., Kelowna, disclosed plans for a 65-acre site six miles from Kelowna on the west side road, Westbank. The terraced hillside site, rising 300 feet above Okanagan Lake, will have 120 residential lots with a view north and south on the lake and overlooking Kelowna on the east side.

Proposed facilities for the future include a resort hotel, a nine-hole par three golf course, a marina and yacht club. Plans for the site also include four-season recreation facilities for year-round residents, including tennis, sauna baths, hot whirlpools, water skiing, fishing, hunting, trail rides and rock climbing. Mr. Hill forecasts a $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 development in the next five years. The prospectus is available and the first step in the development is the sale of 16 lots, including eight of the lakeshore. Priced from $7,800 to $11,500, the lots bordering the lake will have up to 85-foot frontage.

BEACH ACCESS
View lots, one rise above the lakeshore, will range from $5,500 to $6,100 and will have beach access. No lot will be less than 15,000 square feet in area. The development includes a cove and peninsula, 600 feet long by 200 feet wide. The marina will have a European design and will offer mooring facilities. The site is directly across the lake from the Poplar Point area and is a three-mile run by boat from the Kelowna Yacht Club and five miles by road from the lake ferry wharf on the west side of Okanagan Lake.

The development is called Traders Trail Estates, after the original route of the fur brigade, traders, placer miners and cattle drovers, who came through the Valley years ago.

The west side road was the historic line of communication, from Fort Okanagan to Fort Kamloops and the booming Cariboo, between 1811 and 1847. Later an orchard site, the property was formerly owned by the Chaplin family of Kelowna.

"The purpose of the development is to not only provide sites for permanent homes of the executive type but to offer residents and their guests the four-season type of facilities," said Mr. Hill.

The Royal Trust Company in Kelowna is the appointed agent with sales being handled through the multiple listing service.

Blast Shakes Oil Refinery

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—A powerful explosion erupted at the Cities Service Co. refinery here early today, shattering plate glass windows in surrounding business districts and injuring 10 persons. Four workmen were reported missing.

Flames covered an area of a block at the big refinery in extreme southwestern Louisiana. The injured were taken to two hospitals. Five were later released. One of the remaining five was listed in serious condition.

Intense heat kept fire fighters from entering the area which was roped off for fear of secondary explosions. Officials said the blast apparently was sparked by a ruptured butane line which spilled into an oil tower furnace.

Damage was extensive in downtown Lake Charles. Police patrolled the streets to ward off looters. Windows were reported shattered in nearby West Lake and Sulphur, a small community near the Texas border.

The blast sent residents in the area swarming from their homes in nightclothes.

Fight Rages In Bukavu
KINSHASA, The Congo (Reuters)—Fighting flared today in Bukavu, capital of The Congo's eastern province of Kivu, between foreign mercenaries and the Congolese national army, reliable reports here said.

It was not clear whether the mercenaries, said to number more than 150, were trying to take over the town, or fight their way to the Rwanda border, the reports said.

The mercenaries were aided by several hundred police from Katanga. Few details were available so far about the fighting. But the Congolese troops, under the command of Brig.-Gen. Leopold Massiala, are known to be using mortars.

Shipping Strike Threat Studied
OTTAWA (CP)—The threat of a countrywide shipping strike Aug. 17 is being discussed by the cabinet today, a government spokesman said. An effort will almost certainly be made to head it off.

Labor Minister Nicholson was to report to his cabinet colleagues on the situation created by the decision of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada to reject a conciliation board majority report.

The report proposed a package of wage increases and fringe benefits worth in excess of 30 per cent over two years. But the SIU has also demanded immediate action on adoption of the 40-hour work week for its sailors on the Great Lakes and East Coast.

Submarines Sought By India's Navy
NEW DELHI (Reuters)—India announced Tuesday it expects to build up a submarine fleet. Balaram Bhagat, minister for defence production, told the council of state that India would obtain enough submarines for defence needs. He would not say how many, where India would obtain them. Observers here believed the Soviet Union would supply at least four submarines.

TWO BIG INTERIOR IWA LOCALS VOTE TO TAKE STRIKE ACTION

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two of the largest Interior locals of the International Woodworkers of America have voted almost 100 per cent in favor of a strike to support their wage demand of parity with coastal workers. IWA regional first vice-president Jack MacKenzie said Monday the Prince George local with 2,200 members, was 96.6 per cent in favor and the 1,200-member Kelowna local was 98 per cent in favor.

Mr. MacKenzie said figures have yet to be received from the Cranbrook and Salmon Arm locals. He said the final count likely would be held today.

There is no plan to call an immediate strike and an industrial inquiry commissioner is expected to be appointed to mediate the dispute, he said. The IWA demand for parity with the coast forest industry would mean an hourly increase of 50 cents on a base rate of $2.26 for interior workers.

Northern Interior employers have offered 20 cents more an hour over two years and southern interior groups have proposed 26 cents over two years.

China Fears Coup Threat
HONG KONG (Reuters)—Sharpened struggles for power in China's huge army came to light today with reports in the official press stressing the danger of a coup by "reactionary" army officers.

At the same time, the campaign to topple head of state Liu Shao-chi gained intensity with a call for a "struggle to the end" to liquidate Liu and "his agents."

Radio Canton said "the Khruushchev of China," the official abusive term to describe Liu, and his supporters have launched a second, more severe counterattack against revolutionaries in the army's general logistics department.

Meanwhile, the New China news agency quoted an article attributed to an army unit, the Red 9th Company, saying that bourgeois power holders in the military and reactionary army officers are the most dangerous enemies of party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's followers.

The article, published in the Peking People's Daily, refers to a "decisive battle" now going on between Maoists and Liu's supporters and warns: "If conditions ripen, they (anti-Maoists) will seize military and political power and turn the dictatorship of the proletariat into a bourgeois dictatorship."

Radio Canton, quoting an article by proletarian revolutionaries in the logistics unit, said anti-Maoists branded revolutionaries as counter-revolutionaries and imposed a "white terror" in their first attacks.

These attacks were repulsed but the anti-Maoists are not "paper tigers," the article said. The Khruushchev of China and his agents have to be liquidated, despite being beaten. Let all struggle to the end until the agents will never be able to stage a comeback.

College Council Chief Quits - 'Difficulties' Seen As Cause
Difficulties encountered during the past year by the Okanagan Regional College Council resulted Monday in the resignation of chairman Frank Venables, of Oliver.

Mr. Venables, chairman of the college council since its formation in August, 1964, said ill health forced his resignation. In a letter to the council in committee, he said: "It is with deep regret I find it necessary, due to ill health, to tender my resignation as the chairman and a member of the council."

President Norman Walker expressed the feeling of the council today regarding Mr. Venables' decision. "The whole of the council was unanimous in its appreciation of the vast amount of work and time Mr. Venables extended on the college project."

"Unfortunately difficulties encountered in the last 12 months caused the deterioration of his health."

Mr. Venables is 68. He is the chairman of the South Okanagan School Board.

Regatta Decorations Lagging Claim Council And C Of C

Complacent Kelowna merchants and others connected with the visitor industry have been blasted by the city council and the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce.

"It's time merchants and motel-hotel operators started promoting the Regatta and unlimited hydroplane races and stopped taking a ride through city-chamber efforts," Mayor R. F. Parkinson said at Monday night's city council meeting.

He said many people did not like the crowds brought by such attractions but the merchants and resort operators were the first to benefit.

"A lack of decorations in stores this week makes me wonder if such affairs are a waste of time."

Hector Turvey (president of the Kelowna Retail Merchants Association) has asked for co-operation in dressing up store windows, but the response has been poor," the mayor said. "This is not Mr. Turvey's fault; there are so many sale signs in store windows a special Regatta display couldn't be seen."

"Many people work hard to promote Kelowna and these merchants should be ashamed into action. It's about time these people did their part."

Kelowna Chamber of Commerce President K. F. Harding said he couldn't agree more. "We are reaching a critical point. Other communities are spending a lot of money to attract visitors and they simply won't keep coming to Kelowna if merchants won't help promote special events."

Mr. Harding said the situation could "become disastrous" in a few years if better co-operation was not shown. Kelowna Boat Racing Association President Frank Addison, who operates a Bernard Avenue business, said he would gladly contribute to a fund to promote the city.

"I pay $26 for a half-yearly business licence, but I'd gladly pay 100 per cent more during peak tourist months."

He suggested the extra money could be put in a special fund for decorating shops and otherwise promoting the city. Former merchant Ald. Thomas Angus agreed. He said he never received better value than he did for the $33 he paid for a licence for his Bernard Avenue business. He said only two merchants on Bernard Avenue refused to contribute to this year's unlimited hydroplane races. But there are many who could do more to help promote other attractions.

"They seem to be in a dream that the good conditions will never end," said Ald. Angus.

'Get Out And Do Our Best'
"Let's get out and do our best," is the appeal of Hector Turvey to the Kelowna merchants. The head of the Kelowna Retail Merchants Association is disappointed stores are not being decorated in a Regatta and hydroplane theme, or with "welcome to visitor" signs.

Mr. Turvey toured the business sections of the city, including the Shops Capri area Monday. He found "very little response had been given to the effect of window displays or welcome to visitor signs."

"A lot of effort has gone into the planning of these events, effort on the part of the city, the tourist bureau, chamber of commerce, Regatta and hydroplane committees. Among the prime beneficiaries are the retail merchants."

"Surely we, the retail merchants can show some appreciation of the great effort and time spent by these organizations. Welcome signs would make visitors feel Kelowna is glad they are here. The visitors of today may be the residents of tomorrow in the future. An increased population benefits everyone."

The executive members of the retail merchants association wrote to members during the

More Arrests Likely In Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—Officials say more arrests are likely in the case of two white Detroit policemen charged with murdering two Negro teenagers in a motel at the peak of the city's riot.

Prosecutor William Cahalan said he expects more warrants to be issued in connection with the shotgun killings, "but not murder warrants." He indicated conspiracy charges might be filed against some of those present when the shootings occurred.

The patrolmen, Ronald August, 28, and Robert Paille, 32, pleaded not guilty at their arguments Monday. They were held without bail.

August is accused of killing Aubrey Pollard, 19. Paille is charged with killing Fred Temple, 18.

A number of witnesses have said the youths were slain during an early-morning raid by police and national guards searching for snipers at the Algiers Motel in midtown Detroit July 26, three days after rioting began.

A third Negro, Carl Cooper, 17, also was found killed by blasts from a 12-gauge shotgun in the motel.

But Cahalan said he lacked evidence on claims that Cooper may have been shot by a uniformed man.

In other developments Monday growing out of the riots: The national guard issued a statement defending its actions in the machine-gun death of a four-year-old Negro girl. The county prosecutor's office charged two Negro youths with murder in the shooting death of a white Detroit patrolman. Cahalan said he recommended the warrants against August and Paille as the result of statements from 80 persons and a 20-page report compiled by an 18-man Detroit police homicide bureau team. Cahalan refused to reveal what the statements or the report said.

U.S. Inflicts Heavy Death Toll On Attacking N. Vietnamese

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. Special Forces troops and South Vietnamese irregulars counted 11 North Vietnamese dead today after repelling a mortar and ground attack on a special forces camp near the Cambodian border.

Casualties among the 500 defenders and their families at Tong Le Chou were termed moderate, meaning they were hit hard.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said the 19th North Vietnamese Regiment believed to number some 2,000 men, attacked the camp 51 miles northwest of Saigon early Monday and fighting raged for many hours.

In the air war 167 missions were flown against North Vietnam Monday, including an attack on the recently hit Loi Dong storage area four miles northwest of the port of Haiphong.

Immigrants Flock In

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada admitted 108,958 immigrants in the first half of this year, a gain of more than 25 per cent from last year when 86,001 arrived in the first six months.

It appeared to be the highest six-month figure of the 1960s, increasing a 1967 figure of more than 200,000. Figures usually are higher in the second half.

Last year's total was about 190,000, second highest since the record of 1913. Britain again led the figures, with 34,495 entries.

Italy was next at 16,263 followed by the United States at 6,718. Immigrants from the U.S. numbered 6,918 in the first half of 1967.

However, the number of U.S. citizens coming to Canada increased to 6,307 from 6,250. More immigrants are coming from most European countries, the figures showed.

Major sources included Greece 5,901, West Germany 5,455, France 4,757 and Portugal 4,634.

It was the first time in recent years the French figure has moved ahead of that of Portugal.

REGATTA CHATTER

Motorcycles will not be allowed in the City Park during the Regatta, the city council decided Monday night. Last year cycles and bicycles were banned from the park to ease congestion.

Visitors and residents are advised to remove their cars from the north side of Bernard Avenue well before 5 p.m. Wednesday. The Regatta parade is being held Wednesday at 6 p.m., instead of Thursday as in past years, and cars must be removed from the north side of the parade route by 5 p.m.

How do you get tickets to see Regatta? Thursday night, or East End Friday and Saturday? Simple. Head for Regatta headquarters on Mill Street, where the ticket office is open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday to Friday and from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturday.

For those who make the Regatta an annual vacation affair next year's show will be held Aug. 7 to Aug. 10. A large number of families, from as far away as Manitoba and Oregon, have been attending Regattas for many years.

Operators of power boats are being urged to keep their vessels away from the Ogopogo Stadium during Regatta night shows, Wednesday to Saturday. Several events, including water skiing and sail pasts are set for the open water and a strange power boat could cause problems, or a serious injury.

Colorful Regatta programs went on sale throughout the city Monday. The programs contain detailed schedules for competitive events and informative information about many highlights of the first edition of Canada's greatest water show, which begins Wednesday and runs through Saturday.

Chief Of U.K. Coal Board Studies Aberfan Report

LONDON (CP)—Lord Robens, head of Britain's state-run national coal board, started an investigation of his own organization today and admitted: "I just do not know what my position will be at the end of the month."

Robens offered Monday night to resign his $37,500-a-year job because of a judicial report blaming the coal authority for the Aberfan disaster.

But Power Minister Richard Marsh asked Robens to delay his decision and conduct a one-month investigation of the board to "rectify faults" and "ensure a disaster of this kind can never happen again."

The report of the government-appointed tribunal said the massive slide of slag that killed 144 persons in the Welsh village last October was the result of folly, ignorance and bungling ineptitude in the coal authority. It said the avalanche could have been prevented and named nine officials as especially blameworthy.

The tribunal also bluntly declined to accept some of Robens' evidence and described his testimony as "inconsistent." It said Robens was "unwise" to state publicly after the disaster that the slide was "unforeseeable" when persons involved knew otherwise.

Robens, 56, met the coal board for five hours Monday night and his wish to resign was revealed in an exchange of letters with Marsh.

In an interview after the meeting, Robens promised to delay his decision and carry out Marsh's request for an investigation.

"I shall be at my job at 9 a.m. as usual," he said in a voice shaking with emotion. "I just do not know what my position will be at the end of the month."

Asked if the board considered punishment for the nine officials held to blame, Robens said:

"We have had a board meeting which is private. I think we must not comment about sessions we have had, which have been very lengthy."

In his letter to Marsh, Robens wrote:

"You will readily appreciate that my mind has never been free from the tragedy of Aberfan since that harrowing day on October 21 last year. I have now studied the report of the tribunal in detail and accept their findings, particularly their unanimous view that the Aberfan disaster could and should have been prevented."

"I am deeply conscious that the deficiencies further disclosed, which caused the dreadful deaths of 116 children and 20 adults, occurred under my stewardship. It may be that the doctrine of ministerial responsibility does not strictly apply to me as chairman of the national coal board, but I have spent all my life in public service and I feel bound by its rules."

"I have decided therefore that I must offer you my resignation."

Marsh replied:

"I understand and deeply respect the motives which have prompted you to offer your resignation."

"I know that this appalling tragedy has affected you deeply and I am very conscious of the enormous strain you are under. Nonetheless, I am sure you will understand if I say that our first concern—and I know that it is a concern which you share—is to ensure that measures are taken with all speed to rectify faults identified by the tribunal and to ensure that a disaster of this kind can never happen again."

Robens was appointed chairman of the coal board in 1961 by a Conservative government. Since the Aberfan report came out last Thursday, he has received hundreds of letters urging him to remain at his job.

Under his guidance, the coal board showed a profit in 1962 for the first time in 60 years. He has maintained the profit level, doubled mechanization and appears to have kept a militant mine workers' union happy.

"In my view, the examination which the board is undertaking at my request as a matter of urgency would lose much of its impetus if deprived of your leadership. This is of paramount importance."

"When we met last Thursday, I asked that the board should complete its examination before the end of the month. Let us leave the personal considerations raised in your letter on one side until this task is done."

UN Officials Not Pleased With Youth Day At Expo

MONTREAL (CP)—Officials at the United Nations pavilion have expressed disappointment about some arrangements for Youth Day at the world's fair, an Expo source said Monday night.

The source said the officials were particularly disappointed with the program Sunday night at the Youth pavilion where Dr. Ralph Bunche, UN undersecretary for special political affairs, was one of the featured panel members on a discussion about peace.

It was understood that Dr. Bunche, 1950 Nobel Peace Prize winner, was disturbed because Youth pavilion authorities had a hippie San Francisco musical group playing outside as panel members attempted to give serious consideration to the question of peace.

The musical group drowned out much of what was being said by panel members at the gathering of about 200 persons. Panelists came from Senegal, the United States, the Soviet Union, Canada, Mexico, Yugoslavia and French.

GIVES POOR TASTE

The loud music gave a poor taste to a serious discussion, the source said, especially following the Place des Nations ceremonies marking Youth Day, which were late starting and disrupted by a faulty public address system.

The entire Youth Day program had been disorganized, with the schedule having been arranged at the last moment. Even so, it still had to undergo changes throughout the day.

Newspaper reporters covering the program were amazed at the lack of organization of what had been expected to be one of the highlights of Expo, especially with an array of speakers renowned for their anti-American views on the Vietnamese war.

Monday was Gabon's day at Expo and the West African country's festivities were topped off with an evening reception at the Helene de Champlain restaurant given by Daniel Assouline, commissioner-general of the Gabon pavilion, followed by a dinner at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel.

Pierre Mbalele, Gabon's minister of national economy, commerce and mines, officiated at his country's flag-raising ceremony at Place des Nations where he was welcomed by Pierre Dupuy, commissioner-general of Expo.

Now She Wants That Old Car

BEND, Ore. (AP)—Mrs. Carroll Crandall of Bend sold her 1960 car last week for $300. Now she would like it back.

Saturday, the car's licence number, HAB 393, was posted as the weekly winner of $2,500 in a "lucky licence" contest sponsored by the Standard Oil Co. in Oregon.

She says the winning number was leaked out—but not to her—before she sold the car. In Oregon, the licence number stays with the car when the title is transferred.

Helton Perrell of Milwaukee, Ore., came forward Monday and claimed the $2,500 from the R. H. Donnelley Corp., which conducts the contest.

However, state police say the award will be held up pending an investigation.

Mrs. Crandall says that Monday night July 31, the day after she sold the car, someone called her and said: "You've just lost $2,500."

Hired Lawyer

"I don't know what I'm going to do," she said. "I was just mad. I know the number was leaked out." She said she may file a complaint against the company.

A Standard Oil spokesman in Portland said he doubted the number could have been leaked out before she sold the car because each week's winning list is usually mailed on Wednesday or Thursday.

"It's out of our hands," said Ken Johnson, Standard public relations representative. "It's up to the Donnelley Corp. to verify or not verify Perrell as the winner."

A spokesman for the Donnelley Corp. said he has heard of no evidence so far to justify assuming that a leak occurred. If there was any leak, he said he was confident it did not come from the Donnelley Corp.

Walker Staying At Least Until This Year Over

Speculation on the future of Okanagan Regional College President, Norman Walker, was answered with a positive statement at a meeting of the college council Monday.

Mr. Walker will stay until at least Dec. 31.

The chairman of the council, Frank Venables and the council secretary have entered into an agreement with Mr. Walker whereby either he or the council may sever the contract between the two parties if no referendum on the college is held by the end of this year.

The council would pay any relocation costs for Mr. Walker if he left.

Any severance pay due to him would be decided by arbitration.

The chances of holding another referendum this year have all but been eliminated by the council.

Mr. Walker has felt his future with the Okanagan college somewhat cloudy lately, with statements that he "leave the college unless positive progress was made quickly."

Mr. Walker said recently he "would not leave the college unless it was by way of mutual severance" between him and the council.

COLLEGE BRIEFS

More Money Required To Check Possible Sites

Further investigation of sites for the Okanagan Regional College will cost $1,000.

Site committee chairman Dr. J. E. Miltmore, Summerland, said the money was needed to pay for the study of six sites, including the present proposed site. He said three of these sites being considered would be investigated further on the basis of accessibility and cost of furnishing utilities.

He said the engineers' report was almost concluded.

Dr. Miltmore said the sites considered ranged in size from about 100 acres to 175 acres.

A six-man committee will be set up to study and suggest changes in legislation governing regional colleges. This recommendation was passed Monday night at a meeting of the Okanagan Regional College Council.

College council chairman Frank Venables suggested "some kind of pressure be brought to bear" on the architects to bring in a progress report.

The next meeting of the college council will be held Sept. 11.

Transportation Plant Idea Needs More Study, Council

A proposed truck transportation center in the new industrial park is being delayed, pending talks between city officials and principals of the company, Dallas and Davis Forwarding Co. Inc. of Portland, Ore.

The firm seeks to locate in the Highway 97 industrial area to transport trucks being manufactured by White Trucks Manufacturing Ltd.

Acting on behalf of Dallas and Davis, the Kelowna real estate firm of Charles Gaddes and Son Ltd. asked the council Monday night to consider rezoning a section of the industrial park to 1-2 (industrial district zone), from AR-1 (agricultural reserve zone).

The real estate firm said the property was recently purchased, subject to rezoning, by the Portland firm, which plans to build a 4,000-square-foot storage garage, 1,200-square-foot of office building, 750-square-foot of covered washing rack, fuel islands and office parking space.

The property would be curbed, shrubbed and green belted, with the remainder black topped and the main business would be transporting White trucks, the realtors said in a letter to the council.

The city's staff administration committee and the council agreed more information and further talks with the principals were required.

The SAC said the site is a prestige location and should be developed in accordance with the council's established policy, in order that an attractive and intensive office building or manufacturing plant could be located on the site.

The SAC further suggested the proposed use as a "truck service centre" is not the highest and best use for the site, from the viewpoints of employment and economic benefit or return to the city.

The council did not appear to rule out the location of the plant in the industrial park, but felt the operation might require more land than was available at the proposed site.

City planning director Greg Stevens said the area was not serviced and with the land which would have to be dedicated there might not be enough left for the company.

Mayor R. F. Parkinson said the company was in a hurry to proceed, "but we must negotiate further."

The matter was to be discussed by the council in committee, with the possibility of another meeting later in the week involving all concerned parties.

B.C. Offshore Oil May Be Sought

VICTORIA (CP)—Ralph Lofmark, provincial minister of trade, said here, Canada and Russia may make a joint exploration of offshore oil potential in the Arctic Ocean.

This possibility arose after talks between Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Trade Minister Nicolai Patolichev of the Soviet Union in Vancouver Saturday, Mr. Lofmark said.

He declined comment on a possible official announcement on the subject but said there is a prospect for the project "and there is need for discussion at the federal level."

SET FOR THURSDAY SHOW

The crack Canadian Forces jet aerobatic team the Golden Centennaires were due to wing into the Kelowna Airport about 1:45 p.m. today.

The Centennaires, first aerobatic crew to perform in Kelowna since the Golden Hawks in 1963, will perform about 8 p.m. Thursday over Okanagan Lake. The entire show will last about 40 minutes, with the Centennaires taking about 20 minutes for their exhibition. Other features of the show are CF-101 and CF-104 aircraft, flying at more than 1,200 mph and an Avro 504K, hustling past at 95 mph.

Bit Of Nostalgia In City Tonight

A man and his music that span 30 years in dance bands appears tonight in Kelowna.

Mart Kenney and his orchestra, billed as Canada's number one dance band, is scheduled to appear at the Kelowna Armories at 7 p.m.

Mart Kenney was an established dance band leader in Vancouver before he could vote. His orchestra toured B.C. and Alberta in the early 1930s and was first picked up on network radio in 1934. From 1943 to 1945 Kenney's band was the only Canadian dance band-orchestra to broadcast network shows from centres of the armed forces.

In recent years he and his orchestra have specialized mainly in conventions, school and club dates in the Toronto area, interspersed with occasional tours and out-of-town dates.

Mr. Kenney says he feels a great wave of nostalgia setting in, and he notices people at his dances "really want to dance to the good standards."

He seems to attract long-lasting fans. One of his fans has been quoted as saying "all we had during the depression was potatoes and Mart Kenney, and that's why he means so much to us now."

Appearing with Kenney is Norma Locke, a featured performer on a weekly CBC network radio show.

COUNCIL AT WORK

Customs Expense, Delay Better Than No Service

The problem of delays and slight expense in gaining customs clearance for flights from the U.S. to the Kelowna Airport could be eliminated in the future, the city council was told Monday night.

Pilots landing from U.S. flights must now pay mileage of $2.42 to a customs officer and occasionally wait an hour for clearance. The matter was first discussed last week at a Kelowna Chamber of Commerce meeting and members said they were concerned about the delay and the cost.

Ald. Chapman, himself a pilot, said the situation was better than no clearance arrangements, and with greater traffic and a new terminal a permanent customs man might be placed at the airport.

Knox Mountain in the city's north end remains closed because of dry conditions and an extremely high fire hazard. The B.C. Forest Service told the city it was busy in other areas and could not help the Kelowna fire brigade with a fire on the mountain, so rather than risk the area being damaged for years the park was closed until further notice.

Traffic counters, to be used initially on Pandosy Street, have still not arrived, Mayor R. F. Parkinson was told by City Engineer E. F. Lawrence.

W. H. Cleaver of the Canada Manpower Centre in Kelowna was commended by the mayor for being "a good citizen," active in many community activities. Commenting on reports Mr. Cleaver was being moved to Vernon, the mayor hoped the transfer would not be complete, "so Mr. Cleaver could continue to help city civic affairs."

The mayor reported several complaints of noisy motorcycles after midnight and said he didn't know what could be done, "unless a policeman was right on the scene or the licence number was taken by a citizen."

Better signs for the new museum on Queensway and better direction signs to the building were suggested by Mayor Parkinson. He said signs taken from the old Mill Street museum were not displayed on the new building. City engineer Lawrence said the signs would require re-finishing and he suggested moving a sign from the ground to the roof at the Centennial Museum.

Tax prepayments now total $704,198, an increase of $183,656 from the $520,542 paid to the end of last July. Taxpayers have until Oct. 21 to pay their taxes without penalty.

On display at the council meeting was the Pentecost Peach Festival parade float for communities of more than 10,000 population, won again by the Kelowna float, which will appear next in the Regatta parade at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Peter Brian Cook has been named the city's wharfinger, replacing Brian Ley. The wharf-

KBRA In Jam So City Helps Thunderboats

Next week's unlimited hydroplane races received a helping hand from the city Monday night, but not before several aldermen suggested financial aid should not be given this year.

The race sponsors, the Kelowna Boat Racing Association, asked for city crews to perform work valued at about $1,000 and also sought permission to close Knox Mountain next Saturday—race day.

The $1,000 issue, involving mainly preparations in the pit area, resulted in the council approving $600 for the work.

The KBRA was given permission to stop cars at the base of Knox Mountain and ask people to buy $1 booster buttons. The association will also be allowed to charge admission to the beach area between the Ogo-pogo Stadium and the Senior Citizens clubhouse on the lake-front.

A broken promise by Highway Minister Gagliardi has placed promoters of this year's unlimited hydroplane races in a tough position.

Kelowna Boat Racing Association President Frank Addison told the city council Monday night the KBRA would not have to ask for city help if Mr. Gagliardi had kept a verbal promise made last year.

During preparation of the pits for the first running of the British Columbia Cup divers found old pilings used in construction of the Okanagan Lake bridge. The cost of removing the pilings was $8,400, an amount the KBRA did not have in its budget.

Mr. Addison said Mr. Gagliardi told the KBRA the provincial government would pick up the tab. The government was billed, but so far the money has not been paid, Mr. Addison said.

The city's staff administration committee suggested the council have city crews carry out the $1,000 work and bill the KBRA. This was in keeping with an earlier decision not to give the association financial help this year. The SAC also recommended against allowing Knox Mountain to be closed, as purchasing booster buttons should be on a voluntary basis.

The KBRA pointed out the main reason for bringing the unlimited hydroplanes to Kelowna was to promote the city and bring visitors and their dollars to Kelowna.

KBRA President Frank Addison said no single event has given Kelowna so much international publicity. He said people who had never heard of Kelowna were coming to see this year's races.

He said an estimated 1,500 to 2,000 people watched the races from Knox Mountain last July and this revenue could be used by the KBRA.

The sale of booster buttons, he said, was one of the main revenue sources.

Ald. D. A. Chapman said he didn't like the idea but thought there was no alternative for a show of this type. He said if a profit was made this year the KBRA was required to pay off debts to the city.

Ald. W. T. L. Roadhouse said Kelowna taxpayers had been assured they would not have to help finance the boat races this year. He suggested the city crews do the $1,000 worth of work, then have the council re-examine the expense situation.

Mr. Addison said he was surprised to hear Ald. Roadhouse balk at the need for city assistance. He said the boats were simply a medium to get people into Kelowna to spend money and the publicity gained was invaluable.

Ald. Thomas Angus said in the past the city had always helped groups which brought people into Kelowna.

He said the $1,000 price tag placed on the required work by the KBRA was probably closer to $600 or $700. He said a profit this year would help offset the expenditure and also some of the $15,000 in grants and services provided by the city last year.

A motion by Ald. Angus for $600 was supported unanimously, while his second motion, covering Knox Mountain, was approved by a vote of 4-1, with Ald. R. J. Wilkinson against and Ald. W. J. Bedford absent.

Seven People Face Court Driving Charges Dominate

Three people answered charges in magistrate's court today, of driving without due care and attention.

Two of them were each fined $75. Faith Priscilla Huva, Kelowna, reserved her plea on a similar charge to Aug. 15.

Kent Blair Davies, Regina, was charged as a result of an accident Sunday on Highway 97 near the Kelowna Airport, when his car went over a 50-foot embankment at 4:30 a.m. He told police he fell asleep at the wheel.

Scott Gordon McKee, Saskatoon, was involved in an accident on Highway 97 near Winfield Sunday, at 2:45 p.m., when his motorcycle plowed into the rear of a car. He told the magistrate his front brake failed to operate correctly.

Three men were arrested for being intoxicated in a public place. Martin Zuk, no fixed address and Andrew Vedan, Williams Lake, were arrested at 3:55 p.m. Monday, when they were found passed out on the grass near the senior citizen's club on Mill Street. They were each fined $35.

Police Told About Mishap

Mrs. Lucille Roche, 1534 Lawrence Ave., told police at 2 a.m. today, she had run into a hedge in the City Park, damaging her car and a couple of park posts.

C. M. Lipsett of Lipsett Motors Ltd., 1655 Glenmore St., told police at 9:15 a.m. Monday, a 1960 Chevrolet car was stolen from the firm's car lot overnight. The car has a white top and blue sides. The licence is 504-312.

PLEASANT TYPE OF WORK

Working at the first Kelowna International Regatta promises to be, not everyone is holding their breath waiting. Even Gordie Braden, 9, of 801 Fuller, found the pace today at the City Park exciting. Workmen were hard at work completing last minute chores for the mainway, opening Wednesday. Gordie obviously decided to combine work with pleasure as he toured the grounds with Regatta programs to other interested onlookers.

French Choir Here Friday

The French-Canadian 80-voice choir, V.La L'Bon Vent, will be heard in Kelowna Friday.

The choir will sing for 15 minutes at 8:45 p.m., Friday as part of the night show in Ogopogo Stadium in the City Park. Following the first performance, the choir will sing on the grounds in the park at 9:15 p.m.

The choir will sing in an area between the Aquatic building and the entrance gate on Abbott Street, the same area where band concerts will be heard Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons.

The choir sings in several languages, as well as French, and has a group of folk dancers who also perform.

The group has appeared in several European cities and is on a cross-Canada tour, on a centennial grant.

STILL DROPPING

The Okanagan Lake level continues to drop slightly. The level Monday, at the recording station near the entrance to Kelowna's City Park, was 100.47 feet, compared with 100.52 feet one week ago and 100.67 feet one year ago. The minimum level is 97.5 feet and the maximum 102.3.

PROMOTING TONIGHT'S AQUACADE

Lifeguards and swimming instructors found themselves in an unfamiliar position today but the object was right up their alley. They went on a parade. The object was to advertise the Aquacade, beginning at 7:30 p.m. today at Ogopogo Pool in the City and Park. The Aquacade features swimming, diving and comedy events. One of the features will be a canoe-tipping contest between members of the news media in the city and lifeguards and instructors. Proceeds go to a proposed indoor pool in Kelowna.

IT HAPPENED IN CANADA

Mr. Manning Should Not Be Brushed Off Lightly

The book, Political Realignment, written by Alberta Premier E. C. Manning and published on Friday last has received some strong criticism as was to be expected. It also has stirred up no small amount of interest.

Basically, Mr. Manning says that the Social Credit party should be forgotten in the federal field and its adherents should align themselves with the Conservatives to form a party right of centre.

There is much more to it than that, of course, but striped of the flesh that is the bones of the book. Obviously adjustments would have to be made by both the present Social Crediters and the Conservatives, before a union or even a strong working agreement could be effected.

Conservative leader Diefenbaker (we almost wrote "ex") without reading the book commented in all its facets. The Conservative party, he said, would never be permitted to become a reactionary party. The chief apparently feels he is and will remain in command of the Conservative party policies for goodness - knows - how many years.

Other prominent Socreds have asserted that the party is not dead but a very viable force in federal politics. Those who express that viewpoint are few and have little to substantiate their statement. Most political observers, looking at the leaderless rump in Ottawa and remembering the all-out drives for support made in more than one election—which incidentally failed to produce any results in the east—these observers are more likely to agree with Mr. Manning than with those starry-eyed Socreds whistling in the dark.

While all may not agree fully with Mr. Manning's proposals, it must be accepted that there are many, many Canadians who will feel that he is not so far wrong perhaps. Certainly there are many Canadian voters who would like to have a party right of centre for which they could vote with a clear conscience. For these people the country is moving much too quickly into socialism and the propelling force behind this is not the NDP but the Liberals and the Conservatives, both of whom are as far to the left as the avowed socialists. Under Mr. Diefenbaker the country moved far to the left.

If the Social Credit party is missing from the above recital, it is simply because no one, but no one, except a few voters in the extreme west of the country has ever taken the party seriously in federal politics. Even in Quebec where a few seats were captured, the party bore little or no likeness to its western foster parents. Those who claim that Social Credit is a viable federal force are looking through the well-known rose-colored glasses.

Mr. Manning, probably the foremost exponent of Social Credit theories in Canada, recognizes this. He recognizes, too, that the normal wedding of political thought should embrace the Conservatives and the Social Crediters. There will be many who agree with him. Among those who will be the very large number who vote Social Credit provincially in this province, yet when it comes to a federal election, they cast their ballots for the Conservatives.

Islamabad Almost Too Good To Be True For Pakistanis

By RALPH JOSEPH
Canadian Press Correspondent

RAWALPINDI (CP)—Just 10 miles out of Rawalpindi is an idyllic little city nestled in an undulating landscape with a backdrop of low green hills. This is Islamabad, President Ayub Khan's dream and Pakistan's new capital.

Five years ago it did not exist and Pakistanis are proud of it.

It's almost too good to be true. The houses are neat and pretty, rising from the green hills in brick-red and grey with spots of white, blue and yellow.

The roads are broad, clean and blessedly free of the clamor of traffic. Modernistic lamp-posts sprout along their sides like oversized flowers. Wires are all cunningly buried away to keep them from marring the beauty of the place.

The big buildings, if not quite as futuristic as one would have expected, attempt to blend the old oriental designs with new ideas in architecture. If they do not recapture the evasive splendor of the Moguls, the effect is not unpleasant.

NO SLUMS

Happily, the oriental squalor, preserved in the more ancient portions of Rawalpindi itself, is conspicuously absent. Perhaps the population, 50,000 by official estimates, is too small yet to re-create the homely poverty of the East. Or perhaps, if the city's planners have got it right, Islamabad will never see squalor—for all the modern ideas of town-planning have been applied to avoid the congestion of streets found in the generally unplanned older cities.

What one sees is really just a promise, for only a portion of the new city has been completed. The president's house is still a blueprint while the Supreme Court building has not even reached that stage. From the looks of it, perhaps the city won't be quite ready to join Canberra and Brasilia as a complete new capital for yet another decade.

TAXIS WARY

As of now, it even lacks its own local administration. The visitor is apt to be at the mercy of transport. There is, of course, a bus service between Rawalpindi and Islamabad, but buses do not ply within the new city itself. Taxis are also reluctant to go the necessarily short distances within the city's borders and are on the look-out for passengers shuttling between the new city and the old. A ride around the entire city takes about 15 minutes.

The civil secretariat building has been prepared and the drones from some of the ministries and departments are functioning there. Cabinet meetings and National Assembly sessions are also being held in the new city. But the president and his ministers still in Rawalpindi and a good number of government departments and foreign embassies are still crowded into the old military city.

STILL FEW DIPLOMATS

About 14 ambassadors have taken up residence in Islamabad itself. The rest of them, and of course practically the entire embassy staffs, are still in Rawalpindi and its suburbs. One sees few if any foreign faces in the new capital, though a good number are in Rawalpindi.

The situation is something like this, I saw the flags of Canada, Australia, Britain and the United States, among others, flying over ambassadorial bungalows in Islamabad, but the chancelleries of the Canadian and Australian high commissions, side by side with the new USIS building, are found in crowded Saddar Bazaar in Rawalpindi. The American embassy chancery and the British Council were located in a suburb of Rawalpindi. In the same place were the ambassador's residence as well as chancelleries of the Iranian and Japanese embassies. And so on.

There is no question of any of the embassies staying in Karachi. The foreign missions were told that those who stayed on in Karachi would be reduced to consular status. This caused a sudden exodus of the foreign missions from Karachi—where rents fell dramatically, much to the relief of the local inhabitants. But rents rose equally dramatically in Rawalpindi.

Some 250,000,000 rupees ($75,000,000 Canadian) have been spent on the new capital since it was planned eight years ago. The priorities were arranged so that accommodation for the lower government employees was built first.

Women Of Minsk Just Delicious

MINSK, U.S.S.R. (AP)—The Muscovite visiting Minsk first notices the local women. They are gorgeous.

Then he notices the beautiful women. They are just as beautiful.

The ladies—tourists and natives alike—provide attractive decoration indeed for bustling, magnificent Minsk.

The city lies on the tourist route from Berlin to Moscow and the streets ring with French, German and English conversation.

Minsk was in the path of Nazi invaders, and they left a heap of rubble behind in 1945. The local people have rebounded, however, and built a sparkling, modern city on that pile of ruins.

The result leaves a gap in the history of the city. Relics of the past are there, but they are hard to find. They hide behind the concrete and glass of the new Minsk.

The official link with the past extends only to monuments honoring victims of Nazi concentration camps and local people killed during the German occupation.

Tourists in Minsk, like tourists everywhere, are looking for something old for their cameras. More often than not, they never find it.

While the tourists search, the local population—at least the men—get a treat by watching the modern-day foreign invaders. A group of local gentlemen gathered outside the Hotel Minsk recently to observe a busload of fashionably dressed French women.

"Mini-mini," exclaimed one, using a word that translates the same into French, English, Russian and the native language of Minsk—Byelorussian.

Touring Byelorussian industry, one gets the impression that the people have risen rapidly and far in the last 50 years. Literacy, 80 per cent in 1917, has been wiped out. The farm population was 86 per cent, now it is 59 per cent.

New towns are sprouting up, with labor imported from throughout the Soviet Union's 15 republics. Saligorsk and Zhodino, thriving cities erected about a potassium mine and a truck factory, have been built since the Second World War.

One price the Byelorussians have paid for their crash modernization program is their language. The conversation in the street is Russian. The closely related Byelorussian language is kept alive with a national theatre and newspapers, as well as poets and writers, but they appear to be losing their battle.

Mayor Vasily I. Sharapov led Minsk this summer in a glorious celebration of the city's 900th anniversary. Minsk is still plastered with signs recalling the birthday.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

More Discussion About Those Discs

By DR. JOSEPH G. MOLNER

Let's continue yesterday's topic of questions on damaged discs in the spine.

Q — Why do some general practitioners send patients with disc troubles to orthopedic surgeons and some to neurosurgeons?

A — Referral depends on symptoms. Often the orthopedic surgeon and the neurosurgeon must work together.

A — Explained yesterday, the centre of the spine is the channel for important nerve trunks, with branches emerging between vertebrae.

If the problem involves the spinal cord or its branches, this requires the specialized skills of a neurosurgeon. If the nerves are not damaged, but the problem is simply one of the bone structure, the skills of the orthopedic surgeon are required.

Q — How do specialists treat disc troubles?

A — Sometimes by traction—drawing the bones of the spine apart to relieve pressure on nerves. Sometimes by back braces or other supports. Sometimes by removal of bone segments, if such removal can relieve distress. Sometimes by splicing; that is, by grafting pieces of bone so they hold adjacent vertebrae in proper position.

Q — How successful is traction in curing the difficulty?

A — This depends on the extent of the damage. Traction and back braces often succeed in milder disorders, but cannot cope with more serious cases.

Q — Please discuss the operation in which bone is taken from the hip and used to strengthen the spine.

A — This is the grafting of "bone" discussed above. The graft is placed in proper position and the back is held in correct posture until the grafted bone fuses firmly to the vertebrae.

This means that two consecutive (or more) vertebrae will then be rigid as a single bone. The spine, at that point, will no longer be flexible. This, however, is a small price to pay for eliminating pressure on nerves (and hence pain) and averting the risk of the damage becoming more extensive as time passes.

Q — As you have gathered, I have a collapsed disc. My doctor sent me to a neurosurgeon who recommended traction at home for three weeks. I don't know whether to return to the neurosurgeon, as it is quite some distance to his office—50 miles.

A — Yes, return to the neurosurgeon if the traction does not provide relief. There is no way to guarantee in advance whether the conservative methods will suffice. The only way is to try them.

If surgery seems to be the only method promising success, the neurosurgeon will tell you so. If you do not return to him, but go to some other doctor, you will have it all to do over, again—the tests and examination to establish the diagnosis.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any cream or lotion that will remove brown spots from hands, arms, neck and face?—MRS. K.B.N.

This is a cosmetic rather than medical problem. The spots are of no significance, healthwise. Some readers tell me they have had good results with some of the commercial creams, sold for this purpose, others, using the same creams, have said they still have the spots. All I can suggest is keep trying them.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is "crackling" your knuckles bad for you? Does it enlarge them? I have noticed the knuckles and tendons of my left hand enlarge when I get older.—N.A.

It doesn't enlarge or enlarge your joints, but it can be a very annoying nuisance for others to listen to. Find some quieter way to vent your nervous tensions.

New Age Gateway

(Victoria Times)

A government-appointed committee looking into teen-age rights in the United Kingdom concluded that 21 was originally chosen as the year of coming of age because back in the 11th century persons younger than that were not considered strong enough to wear heavy armor.

If this criterion had endured, chances are that many of our 16-year-olds would qualify for adulthood today. Not only have the youngsters apparently grown bigger and stronger over the intervening years, however, not only has the need to bear the weight of armor disappeared, but modern boys and girls in general seem ready mentally at an earlier age to carry the social burden of being grown-up—even in a vastly more complicated world than when physical strength was of primary importance.

Britain's youths, the committee found in its two-year study, are on the whole better educated, more responsible and more mature than were their elders at the same age.

(There is no reason to doubt, either, that this is true in the United Kingdom, it is of equal validity in Canada, the United States and most other highly developed countries.)

Moreover, the 11-member group decided after long investigation and thought, there is nothing anti-social about the manifestations of young spirit which many older people equate with delinquency, such as bright clothes, long hair and the liking for pop music, these are not denials of responsibility.

It scarcely seems amiss, therefore, that the committee has recommended that the age of 18 instead of 21 be the new gateway to full civil rights, apart from the franchise, which is the subject of a separate inquiry by an all-party committee of Parliament and was excluded from consideration. If the recommendations are accepted, the 18-and-ups will have the right to marry without parental consent, to enter into contracts, to be responsible for their own litigation and to establish their own domicile.

This so-called "bill of rights" for British senior teen-agers, together with the right to vote which also is expected to be proposed by the parliamentary committee, will add about 2,500,000 instant adults to the electorate if approved—presumably most of them favorably inclined to the government that has given them the recognition.

No doubt Prime Minister Wilson will have this fact in mind. Nor would it be surprising if another prime minister, looking across the Atlantic, should get the same idea.

OUR ECONOMY

Living Costs To Rise, Level

By WARREN BALDWIN

The cost of living in Canada will continue to rise until the end of the year when it should start to ease off. For the next five months Canadians will experience the inevitable hangover from two years when individual spending, business and government combined in a price push up that can't be topped overnight.

Minister Mitchell Sharp forecast an average increase in prices in 1967 over 1966 of three per cent. The average is already higher and it looks as though this forecast was too conservative.

Moderately higher unemployment eased pressures for a short period but the strong public demand for goods and services has revived and led to predictions of a new business upswing in the fall. The sensitive goods, industrial materials that the manufacturer must purchase to produce consumer goods, are the first to feel any impact of this and the most faithful heralds of higher prices. After a short period of decline this index has turned up.

Food and other non-durable goods have shown some tendency to turn down but after lagging behind the general increase the prices of durable goods—cars, refrigerators, stoves, televisions and electrical appliances—are showing increases.

OTTAWA SPENDING

Finally governments are not practising what they were preaching last fall. Ottawa is spending as never before and borrowing its requirements from the savings of Canadians, leaving less money available for housing needs and bringing a return of high interest rates.

The consumer price index increased by 0.47 per cent between May and June and 3.5 per cent on the year. But that does not mean that it was your cost of living index. It was based on what a target group of families can and how much. Even if, by some remote chance, you did buy the same things in the same quantities it still might not give a true picture of your family basket. One of the worst headaches for those who make the surveys is laxity in record-keeping and the more families rely on memory the more they report how they think incomes should have been spent instead of how it was spent. A general case of under-reporting is money spent on alcohol and tobacco. Those preparing the cost of living family basket couldn't care less about morals or even family needs.

Finally the basket of goods and services that fits your wants may be quite different to that of your neighbor and may have cost you more or less. Every housewife knows that food prices don't move up and down as a group. The same applies in other non-durable goods where the necessity for a reasonably quick turn-over means that the supply and demand of the moment dictates prices. The clothing index in May showed no change from April but if you were buying a woman's spring coat in May you would have paid 2.7 per cent less. If it was a girl's coat you were after, it might have cost you three per cent less.

SAMPLED MONTHLY

These prices are sampled each month in 16 Canadian cities and the average taken. Sixty tea bags in March would have cost 85.3 cents on the average; in April, 85 cents and in May 84.6 cents. Last year over the same period they jumped by a half a cent. If you buy ground coffee for percolating you may or may not have noticed that it has dropped by four cents a pound since February and was also four cents less in April and May than in the same months last year. If you buy the instant variety you paid on the average $1.14 in May, 1966 and $1.054 this year.

Round steak is still a pretty costly item in the family budget but in May at $1.009 a pound it was slightly less than last year and five cents a pound less than in February. A rib roast cost 1.5 cents a pound less in April. A half pound of side bacon dropped about one cent a pound between April and May but nine cents a pound on the year.

Milk and bread both take up a lot of space in the cost of living basket and there have been numerous complaints about rising prices. Milk did jump by 2.3 cents a quart between February 1966 and February 1967. In May it was a tenth of a cent higher. But bread dropped from 19.3 cents a pound to 18.7 cents and eggs (Grade A Medium) from 63.2 cents to 51.3 cents.

CANADA'S STORY

Canadian Attack Helped End War

By BOB ROWMAN

As in the boxing ring, the tide of war can change very quickly. In March, 1918, the German army began an offensive that pushed the Allies back 40 miles on the first day. This was unbelievable after three years of fighting in which a gain of 40 yards would be hailed as a victory. The heaviest Canadian casualties in the First World War were at Passchendaele when the Allies gained two square miles of mud after a month's fighting. The so-called victory cost 500,000 casualties. The Germans lost 270,000 men.

So in March 1918 it looked as though the Germans would break through all the way to Paris and it was perhaps a miracle that they were stopped at the second battle of the Marne when Field Marshal Haig issued an order that the British must stand "to the last man."

The tide turned suddenly on Aug. 8, 1918. It was called "the black day of the German Army" by General Ludendorff. The Allied High Command used Canadian, Australian and New Zealand troops to trick the enemy. Whenever the Canadians appeared the Germans expected an attack. So a small number of Canadians were moved to Flanders and told to make themselves oblige. The main body of the Canadian Corps was hidden in the Amiens area.

The Germans were completely fooled. When the Canadians and Australians began the main attack at Amiens, supported by 500 tanks which were comparatively new in warfare, they found only six German divisions defending the area. They stormed ahead eight miles on a front 15 miles wide and the impetus of the drive was never lost until the Germans asked for an armistice on November 11.

The attack became known in history as "The Hundred Day of the Canadian Army" which suffered 16,000 casualties between August and October.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mathison Place.

Out-of-town guests attending the ceremony included the groom's mother, Mrs. E. R. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Dorvald Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Johnson all from Dawson Creek. Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Gabbott and Stephen and Fraser Gabbott from North Vancouver.

ANN LANDERS

Leave Your Dog Alone He Isn't Able To Talk

Dear Ann Landers: Since you caused my problem, perhaps you can tell me what to do about it. You have wrecked my life with those ridiculous letters about "talking" dogs.

First let me make it clear that my husband is a solid citizen. I have never known him to go off the deep end about anything—until he read in your column about the "poodle who said 'I want to go outside,'" and the spaniel who spoke Italian.

Now my husband is firmly convinced that if other people's dogs can talk, ours should be able to say something, too. For a week now he has been trying to get our boxer to say, "The rain in Spain falls mainly on the plain." The poor dog doesn't know what to make of it.

My husband has faith in you, Ann, so please tell him in your column that not all dogs can be made to talk and to stop making our hound miserable. CAN'T GET THROUGH TO HIM.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night we went to a party at the home of relatives. A 15-year-old girl was being honored at a birthday party given by her parents.

The child ripped open one beautifully wrapped gift after another, glanced at the contents, tossed the gift aside, then reached for the next gift without uttering one word of thanks or even looking at the person who gave it to her.

After she had opened about a dozen boxes, she became bored, stopped over the gifts as if they were garbage and trotted into the bedroom to try on her new clothes. Her parents didn't say one word to her about her rudeness.

Please tell us if we should say something to the child, or to the parents. The girl is becoming more obnoxious by the day—CONCERNED RELATIVE.

Dear Relative: It is clear from the tone of your letter that you dislike the child. The truth is that she is the victim of poor upbringing. It is tragic when children are reared to be selfish and ungracious. Think of what that girl will have to overcome later in life!

Say nothing. Your remarks would not be well received. Do try to understand, however that the child is not at fault.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 15 who is torn between my mother and my father. They were divorced last month and I am a nervous wreck. I have the choice of going with my mother who has decided to stay in this house or I can move to an apartment with my father whom I love dearly.

If I go with my father I will have to change schools. This means leaving my friends which would kill me. I also feel I should stay with my little sister who has no choice, she must remain with Mom, but this would mean Dad would have no one while Mom had two.

Please help me decide.—ONE WHO HATES DIVORCE

Dear One: A 15-year-old girl is usually better off with her mother. A new school plus the emotional problems of a freshly split home is too much of a load. So, stay with you Mom and spend your summers and holidays with your Dad and good luck, honey.

Chimney Sweep Recalls Past

VANCOUVER (CP)—George Latham, 74, a retired newspaper typesetter, recalls with ease his varied careers, but none with such vivid memories as his days as an English chimney sweep.

At the age of seven in England he was forced to find work to help support his family and applied for work as a chimney sweep.

"There was a great demand for boys to do this work in Cornwall, where I was raised—preferably slim-built boys who were very agile."

A boy chimney sweep had a tough and sometimes dangerous job.

"When I look back, the horrors of the dangers I encountered are hardly conceivable to the modern mind. Some chimneys had sets of bricks protruding inwards at intervals to help the sweep climb; but others were nearly smooth or had razor-sharp rocks that cut my hands and feet."

"The most terrifying experience was being caught halfway up when the jagged rocks would hold me until I could chisel my way out. In the meantime I would be almost suffocated by the soot, which would get thicker as I worked."

A young Latham once solved the mystery of a man who vanished for a year from an old castle in Cornwall. Called in to clean a chimney, he started to climb up the flue and found a pair of feet dangling down.

The missing man had made the fatal error of underestimating his size when he climbed up the chimney.

"The wages for this work depended on the size of the chimney," says Mr. Latham. "But two shillings (about 25 cents) was the most I ever received for a very long day's work—from 7 a.m. to midnight."

Sometimes a flue was too smooth for the chimney sweep to climb. So his employers would push him up the chimney with a long pole lightly padded with sackcloth.

"Such boys became human soot brushes, and sometimes emerged more dead than alive. It was a pretty inhuman way to treat a seven-year-old boy."

Again No Roar From B.C. Lions

VANCOUVER (CP)—Saskatchewan Roughriders started their defence of the Grey Cup Monday night by mauling B.C. Lions 24-16 in a Canadian Football League game, but Lions general manager Denny Veitch predicted: "I still think we'll be in the playoffs."

Veitch and 28,411 fans had just seen the Lions tumble into the Western Conference basement, which they occupied at the conclusion of the 1966 season.

The Roughriders had only one new face in their starting lineup and the Lions 14, including 100 rookies.

"You can't expect us to beat the Grey Cup champions just like that, but we weren't that far off, having held a 13-10 lead at one stage," said Veitch.

FIRST GAME
It was the Riders' first league game of the season, and the win put them into an early-season first-place tie with Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Calgary Stampeders.

Their offence produced 16 first downs, two more than B.C., and 323 yards, 12 better than the Lions.

Most of Saskatchewan's yardage, 223 yards, came on the ground but two touchdowns came through the air.

Quarterback Ron Lancaster tossed scoring strikes to Hugh Campbell and Al Ford. He got the other major himself by bulging over from the one after setting it up with a series that included a 34-yard pass to Ford.

Jack Abendschan converted all Saskatchewan touchdowns and kicked a 23-yard field goal. The Lions' only touchdown was the most exciting play of the game. Quarterback Bernie

HUGH CAMPBELL
... dazzled Lions

Faloney heaved the ball 45 yards through the air to Jim Young. The rookie back from Queen's university via Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League, gathered it in and ran the remaining 24 yards with two riders in pursuit.

Ted Gerela, soccer-style placement kicker from Washington State, converted Young's effort and chipped in three field goals—29, 42 and 25 yards. He came close on two others, including a 44-yarder that hit the cross bar.

Solid running by Saskatchewan spelled the difference. Veteran George Reed hammered over 91 yards along the ground and made four straight carries to set up the last touchdown.

Ed Buchanan also had a good night and contributed 73 yards. The front wall, weakest part of the Lions' game, prevented an impressive ground attack.

Bill Munsey gained 48 yards and rookie Leroy Sledge, the only other Lion carrier, earned 41. Faloney was good on 11 of 27 passes for 262 yards.

Lancaster, most valuable player in the WFC last year, completed eight of 15 passes for 100 yards.

Frustrated by a ball that was tipped into Campbell's arms for a touchdown and 94 yards in penalties against 45 to Saskatchewan, some Lions grew short tempered late in the game.

A fight broke out after Gene Wlasiuk intercepted a Faloney pass in the fourth quarter.

Young and Dale West of the Lions were ejected along with Roughriders' lineman Ron Atchison. Standard fine for banishment is $50.

The clubs meet Friday in Regina.

Willows Square Semi-Finals In A Game Both Tried To Win

By RICH VIVONE
Courier Sports Editor

Both teams tried their damndest to give the ball game away Monday but finally, with huge reluctance, the Willow Inn Willows accepted the fate of winning the contest.

The 8-7 decision over the Vernon O'Keefe's in the second game of the best of three semi-final squared the series at one game each. Next game will be played Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at King's Stadium.

The game was, to say the least, an odd affair. It wasn't that the teams committed errors in wholesale lots but rather that they chose to boot the ball when two men were out and important runs on the sacks.

The Willows committed this gross error twice and it cost them five runs. Vernon, which could have gained a berth in the finals with a win, took that route twice also and the total damage was four runs.

INNOCENT VICTIMS
Victims of these tortuous moments were two amiable chuckers, Larry Yeast of Willows and Gerry Altwasser of Vernon, by name.

Yeast, in winning the decision worked eight innings and gave up six hits. He got six men out of the seven runs charged to him, a blessed two were earned. It was one of Yeast's best efforts of the season.

On the other side, Gerry Altwasser was struggling through his second complete game in two days. He beat the Willows in the series opener Sunday at Vernon. Altwasser allowed nine runs on eight hits. Five were earned. He fanned seven and walked five.

Willows set the trend in the third inning. With one run in runners on second and third, and two men out, Vernon shortstop Warren Gould slapped the ball to first sacker Jerry Keyes.

The crew cut veteran let the ball slip through his grasp into right field and two runners scored.

The break gave Vernon a 3-1 lead.

Willows came back with three in the last of the third but they were legitimate runs. Yeast walked and consecutive base hits by Gene Knorr, Garnie Howard and Ian Angus plus a throwing error by centerfielder Cliff Loring capped the rally.

John Weninger, who played a fine game for Willows, cracked a fourth inning homer for a 4-3 lead. The clubs traded single runs in the fifth but Willows stretched their lead to 6-4 in the seventh.

Then the eighth. Charity was at its peak. Both teams gave away three runs which was at least a friendly gesture.

In the Vernon half, Yeast retired the first two batters easily. He walked Shockey, Russ Keckalo singled. Then Loring blooped a lazy pop fly to short right field. Second baseman Knorr raced back and gloved the ball but it fell to the ground.

The runners were flying around the bases.

Then right fielder John Weninger grabbed the ball and tried to get Loring who was speeding around second but the ball went into the chasm that is the left field foul territory. Loring scored.

IAN ANGUS

scored and Vernon had a 7-6 lead.

But it wasn't over. Not by a long throw. Altwasser retired the first two batters in the eighth. He walked Ron Pyle and Larry Yeast and Knorr beat out a bunt which he intended to blast out of the park and the bases were jammed.

Then Garnie Howard drilled a sharp hit through the infield but left fielder Fred the ball in to nowhere as three runs scored. They finally nailed Howard trying to reach third base.

That ended the game no one wanted—but both needed.

The A series between Royals and Rutland continues today at 6:30 p.m. at Rutland Centennial Park. Royals won the first game of the best of three series 3-2 Sunday.

One More Defeat And Kelowna Out

Kelowna Labatts have their backs to the wall. Monday at Elk's Stadium, the club dropped its second straight semi-final game to the Penticton Molsons. The 4-3 win leaves Molsons one victory from a berth in the Okanagan Mainline Baseball League finals currently tied at one game each between Vernon Luckies and Kamloops Lelands. Both series are best of five affairs.

Labatts, hindered by a lack of consistent pitching all season, found they had some bad bats also. The team managed only four hits off starter Pat McMahon and his relief Hank Tibberg.

Fred Zaharia had two of them. Ron Lindhe, an 18-year-old catcher from Oroville, Wash., and Ron Harcus had the others.

But the Molsons were much more aggressive with the lumber. They hammered Labatts starter Al Veters and Dennis Morrow for 10 hits and also gratefully received seven free passes.

Third sacker Ed Folk didn't enjoy one of his better nights with the glove as he committed two costly errors that led to Labatt runs. Was more proficient with the bat. He lashed two hits including a double. His base hit in the fifth started the three run Molson rally.

Catcher Al Richards who is the best at his position in the league also had two hits—both singles.

The damaging blow however was struck by pro hockey star Larry Helm. The Seattle Totem defence player who patrols right field in the summer blasted a two-run homer over the left field fence in the fifth inning.

Labatts, under the management of Jack Burton, rallied from a 3-0 deficit to tie the score. They got one run back in the sixth and two runs in the seventh made it all even.

Joy Now Frustration For Slumping Cubbies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The hopes of Chicago fans that their team would end its losing streak went up with a Cub ninth-inning rally. Then, they went down again with the sun.

The Cubs lost their seventh straight game, 6-3 to Pittsburgh Pirates in the first game of a doubleheader Monday at Wrigley Field—where the only light available is the natural kind.

And they were losing third-second game 3-1 when they rallied for a tie in the bottom of the ninth inning. But neither team could score again, and the game was called because of darkness after 14 innings.

The individual records count, but the game will have to be replayed as part of a doubleheader Wednesday.

Joe Hardy Would Have Been Proud

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Hardy, the mythical hero who led Washington Senators from oblivion to the American League pennant in a best-selling book a few years back, would have popped his buttons with pride over Gil Hodges' club today.

The Senators got a three-hitter from Phil Ortega Monday night and blanked Minnesota Twins 5-0 for their third straight victory and ninth in the last 12 games. It left them at the magic 500 mark, a plateau seldom reached by the perennial also rans.

Washington has soared into sixth place in the standings just seven games off Chicago's first-place pace. They have won 21 of the last 29 games and if this keeps up, it could mean a congressional investigation.

RETIREES 13 STRAIGHT
In the only other American League games played Monday, Baltimore Orioles' Gene Brabender blanked Cleveland Indians 4-0 on a four-hitter and New York Yankees 8-4, scoring seven runs in the eighth inning.

Ken McMullen smashed his 13th home run of the season and Paul Casanova drove in two runs with a first-inning double as the Senators jumped into an early lead.

Ortega, running his record to 95, led the first 13 batters he faced before Bob Allison's drive fell off Hank Allen's glove for a fifth-inning double.

But the big right-hander allowed just two other singles and was in control all the way. Brabender, recalled by Baltimore from Rochester of the International League July 21, was just as strong. He pitched hitless ball until the sixth inning and finished with a four-hitter against the Indians.

Brabender struck out 12—a season high for the pitching-poor Orioles—and got brilliant fielding support from centre fielder Paul Blair.

Blair ran far to his left for Vic Davallillo's first-inning liner and then crashed into the fence grabbing Duke Sims' fly ball in the seventh.

Sam Bownen's two-run homer featured a four-run seventh inning that won it for the Orioles. The Angels exploded for seven runs in the eighth inning on six singles, a walk and an error, wiping out a 4-1 New York lead.

ERATIC CARDS
With the game tied 3-3, two out and men on first and second in the ninth, Dodgers, Hunt singled in one run. Another scored when centre fielder Curt Flood bobbled the ball, and Hunt raced home when second baseman Phil Gagliano threw the relay past third.

The Cardinals, who were on a five-game winning streak, tied it in the eighth when Mike Shannon doubled home Orlando Cepeda, who had singled. Los Angeles had taken a 3-2 lead with two runs in the sixth on a sacrifice fly and Lou Johnson's steal of home.

Rich Allen's two-run homer in the Philadelphia first inning, giving him 11 RBI in his last five games, was all the hitting help Jim Bunning needed in recording the 36th shutout of his major league career.

The veteran right-hander allowed San Francisco just four hits while ending the Giants winning streak at six games.

Kamloops Wins Swimming Meet
The Kamloops Swim Club won all three trophies at the Kelowna Junior Swimming Regatta at the Ogopogo Pool Sunday.

More than 200 swimmers participated in the 72 swimming events and five diving competitions.

The team aggregate award went to Kamloops. The team scored 569 points and won the S. M. Simpson Trophy. Penticton was second with 332 points and Kelowna took third with 295 points.

The girls' team trophy also went to Kamloops. They won the Willow Inn Trophy with 254 points. Penticton was second with 136 points and Kelowna third with 80 points.

The Royal Anne Hotel Trophy for the boys team competition was won by Kamloops. The team scored 246 points while Penticton had 118 and Kelowna 112.

Opening lead—nine of spades.
Defense is largely a matter of partnership cooperation, but some of the decisions resulting from this cooperation are based on very delicate inferences. The messages delivered by standard signaling in a well-developed partnership are highly illuminating, but there is always the danger of a slight miscalculation.

Consider this hand where South was in three notrump. West judged from the bidding that his partner had length or strength in spades and therefore led the nine of spades.

Declarer had no trouble diagnosing the nine as a short-suit lead. He therefore went up with the king, on which East played the deuce, led the queen of hearts, and finessed. West permitted the queen to win, but won the jack with the king on the next play.

There appeared to be no future to another spade lead, so West shifted to the ace of clubs on which East signaled with the jack. West then continued with the seven, declarer discarding a spade from dummy as East followed with the deuce and South with the five.

It was at this point that West fell from grace by leading still another club. Declarer won with the king, drove out the ace of diamonds, and came home with nine tricks.

Instead of leading the third round of clubs, West should have switched back to spades. Had he done this, South would have been down one—he would have lost, all told, a spade, a heart, a diamond and two clubs.

East's play of the deuce on the seven of clubs which had the trick—was the significant clue that escaped West's attention. Obviously, if East had wanted clubs continued, he would have overtaken the seven in order to lead another club.

His play of the deuce therefore suggested a shift to another suit. Viewed in this light, it should not have been too difficult for West to revert to spades.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW

A generally favorable day if you will observe a couple of admonitions: In meetings or conferences, don't over-press your points—especially if you sense resistance. Bypass them temporarily and bring them up later, in a casual manner. Be especially careful in dealings with the opposite sex and, in discussions, leave out personalities.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY

If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that, with further progress indicated in April, May and July. Other good cycles for social and sentimental concerns: December, next April and May.

As of September 1st, you will enter a month-long cycle which should be excellent from many angles. Planetary influences then will stimulate occupational and business matters; also creative pursuits. It will also be a fine period for romance, marriage and social interests. In the aforesaid connections, your next good period for job advancement will occur in January.

Where finances are concerned, while there may be no dramatic change in your status, you should find many pressures of the past lifting during the next 12 months and, if you are careful to avoid speculation—especially between now and mid-December, you should wind up this new year in your life definitely "in the black." Next good period for increasing assets: December 21st through February 15th. After that, fiscal ventures launched in June and operated on the conservative side, have an extraordinarily good chance of succeeding by the end of August.

A child born on this day will be endowed with a dynamic personality; could excel as a salesman, trial lawyer or dramatic actor.

Four Face Arson Charge

HARTFORD, Conn. (AU)—Four men, one of them identified as the former head of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in New Haven, have been charged with arson in connection with two fires in Hartford's north end.

Police said a fire bomb burned out the interior of a supermarket early Saturday, causing an estimated $200,000 damage. Four hours after the blaze, police said, gasoline was poured through a kitchen vent-lator at a restaurant and then was ignited, causing heavy damage.

Arrested on two counts of arson each were John Barber, 29, and Leroy Moton, 22, both of West Haven, and James Brown, 23, and Marlon Brown, 25, both of Hartford. The four men, all Negroes, appeared in court today and their cases were put over to Aug. 22. Bail was set at $20,000 each.

Barber was identified by his lawyer as the former New Haven NAACP head.

Many Soviet Arms Found In Sinai

TEL AVIV (AP)—The equipment of an entire Soviet-armed Egyptian reconnaissance brigade has been found intact in the Sinai Desert by Israeli army survey units, army sources said today.

The unit includes seven ultra-modern amphibious tanks, seven armored troop carriers and a large quantity of reconnaissance armed jeeps. The Israelis also found considerable numbers of Soviet anti-tank rockets.

Army sources reported that units have come across ammunition, tanks and vehicles abandoned by the Egyptian army in its flight to the Suez Canal.

Peachland Invited: Join Appeal!

PEACHLAND—At a meeting held Aug. 3 in the offices of the Central Okanagan Community Chest, Kelowna, an unanimous invitation was extended to Peachland to join the Central Okanagan United Appeal Campaign for 1968.

Peachland visitors at this meeting were Harold Lyon, president of the Peachland and District Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Art Kopp, Mrs. E. Chisholm, Mrs. Ed Neill, Mrs. W. Selwyn, and Mrs. J. R. Davies. These Peachland people have canvassed and organized blitzes for various organizations in the past few years.

The reason that there will be three campaigns is that the Cancer Society and the Kinsmen's Mothers' March do not belong to the United Appeal. Harold Lyon, president of the Peachland and District Chamber of Commerce, stated that the merchants of Peachland and the municipal Council are in favor of Peachland joining the appeal and after much discussion those present agreed to approach all of the women's groups in Peachland and give the Community Chest their decision within a week.

Wonders Of Nature Displayed At Rutland WI Flower Show

RUTLAND — Dr. A. W. N. Drutt officially opened the Rutland Women's Institute annual flower show, held this year, for the first time, in the parish hall of the Rutland Catholic Church. He complimented members on the fine display of flowers, and spoke of some of the wonders of nature found in the structure of plants, flowers and trees.

Mrs. Flora Barber, convener of the flower show committee, thanked Dr. Drutt and welcomed the visitors to the show. Judges for the show were once more Edwin Gregory of Kelowna and A. M. Thompson of Westbank, and appreciation was expressed for their services by the convener, on behalf of the institute.

Winner of the high aggregate award for the show this year was again Mrs. W. D. Quigley, last year's winner, who gained a total of 95 points, and was presented with the Dave Addy Cup. Runner-up was Mrs. A. W. Gray winning the Ann Caljow Memorial Cup, with a total of 77 points. The silver cup for sweet peas was won once more by Mrs. R. G. Quigley, as did the BCFGA Silver Cup for the best display of fruit, open to BCFGA members.

There's not one but two forest industries in B.C.

The differences between the coast and interior forest industries make all the difference between the wages they pay.

On September 1st, the IWA is threatening to call a strike to make the Southern Interior lumber operators knuckle under to its demand for a basic 22 per cent wage increase. This means 50 cents more an hour on all rates. Its members want parity with the workers in the B.C. coast lumber industry.

The Southern Interior lumber operators would be only too happy to oblige — if they had equal conditions.

But they don't. They have smaller trees, less productive land, lower rainfall, bigger transportation bills, poorer quality timber, a predominance of smaller operations unlike the large, more profitable integrated ones on the coast, and mounting problems in marketing and competition.

The closer you look, the greater the differences. No matter what the Union claims, there is not one forest industry in B.C., but two — and, by any yardstick, the conditions which apply on the coast do not apply in the interior.

Over the three years of the current contract, the Southern Interior industry increased wages by 20%, more than double the rise in the cost of living. The basic wage is now $2.26 an hour (the second highest in the lumber industry in Canada), and the operators have offered an additional 26 cents an hour. The Union is holding out for an extra 50 cents an hour, or a basic wage rate that equals the coastal rate of $2.76. It is an increase the operators are not prepared to pay. An increase they cannot afford.

It is now a question not of parity but of survival.
